THE JOSH BILLINGS PAPERS.

Stranger, have yu ever been to Pordunk villiage, my native place?

It iz a dear little lulaby of a place, sleeping between two small mountains in the state of Pennsylvania.

It kontains about 1,000 souls now and is watered by Goose crick, which meanders thru the villiage az crooked and as lazy as a skool boy on his way to the district skool hous

I was born here, and the ground on which the old hous stood is there yet My ancestors are all here in, but they have retired from business, and are taking their ease in the old grave yard back of the little one story church.

The red painted tavern, where years ago the town folks gathered in, on Saturday nights, to wet their whistles, and brag on their bush beans, and other garden sass, is gone and departed.

And Roger Williams, whare iz he?

Roger was the village blacksmith, and could out argy the parson on a bit of skripture—his anvil is still, and he now lives in his new house, with the rest of the old people, just back of the little one story church.

Where iz Squarre Watkins, the justuss of the peace? He knu law, and the stattews, just az easy as he did the 10 commands; hiz little old offiss, tor 50 years unpainted, iz now no more.

No one ov his name is left, he and Roger; the blacksmith, lay side by side just back ov the little one story church as still az death kan make them

Sue Dunham, the crazy woman, I don't see her! Poor Sue, she was not always welkum, but no one turned her away, a night's lodging no one refused; she was even beautiful still, when I was a boy, but I shrunk from the flash of her mysterious eye.

The old folks kan her story, it was that sad one, so often told, and so soon forgotten, a man's perfidy

Sue Dunham raves no more, but in the farthest korner, just bak ov the little one story church, where the dead lay the thickest, lays Sue.

A weep in wilow, sown by acksident, hangs over her grave, and on her hed stone, these words, almost knawed away by time, kan be made out, "Sue Dunham, aged 59"

Parson Powell, who led his flok by the side ov the waters, who went with hallowed drops at christnings, who jined in wedlok, and who asked God to take the departing ones, I miss him too; peacefully he sleeps, just bak ov the little one story church.

Deakon Tucker, who sold sugar by the pound, and molasses by the pint, who delt in whale ile, and bar sope, who kept razena and razor straps who could measure a yard ov kotton, or kaliko, to a thread, and who, 4th of July's, sold 3 fits krakers, to us boys, for a penny, what has become of the deacon

Years ago he fled not far away, but close up to the back wall ov the little one story church, near to parson Powell.

An old phellow was Ez Farnham, and withal az a hornet. Them that swopped hosses with Ez once, didn't hanker to do it again; he was honest, but oh! how fatal to dicker. No one, in the whole village, remember him; he haz gone where they don't give out gi hoo; they put him in the hall aker just back ov the little one story church.

Job Pierson is deaf too, and so is Job's wife, and all ov Jobs sons and daughters.

I go up and I go down the good old village ov Pordunk, the good people all stare at me as I stop here and stop there, few say tew miself, "here it was that Lige Turner threw Dave Larkins, 40 years ago in a wrestle on the village green, and there stood the old town pump."

Here old Beverly, the barber, shaved for three cents a shave, and thare Barbank daff soled boots for a quarter.

Here—lets see! was it here? Yes, old Mother Benneway sold taffy here, each stick at least 8 inches long, and made out ov Deacon Tucker's best Porto Riko molasses.

There stood the little red skool hous, right thare; it was the folks of a road then, it iz the corner ov a block now.

Who kan tell me where Daniel Purdy, the skool master lives now, no one. I av asked a dozen, but no one remembers Daniel Purdy.

It is a sad thing to be a skool master, no one ever seems tew know where they go when they miss them. They just seem to depart, thats all. I never knu one tew die and be buried.

Ah it iz pleasant—it iz sad, tew go bak tew the village of Pordunk, thare was when I was a boy, and how different are they—or how different am I.

The trees are the same, man kant alter them; Goose krik runs just where it did, with willows in all its elbows; the mountains each side havn't grown enny smaller, the birds sing the same songs, but I don't kno enny one that i remember. I go down the main street to the lost corner, where Joel Parker once lived, then I turn to the left, and keep on for a ways, till i cum tew the little one story church.

Just bak of that they are all living now. They don't remember me when I go thare, but I remember them. It won't be very long now before i shall jine them.

BIOMETERY.

The above was the title of a lecture on the Measure of Life, by Dr. Lambert, recently given at Columbus. From the State Journal we clip the following synopsis: "The doctor appears to have made this subject a special study and now feels competent to say, from the appearance of an individual, what has been the average length of life of his ancestors, and at what time he will probably be himself gathered to his fathers. He throws aside all formality and discusses his favorite subject as familiarly as one would speak of the weather. While he holds that each person is born with a certain potential longevity, that he is, barring accidents, capable of living to a certain age and not beyond, he still lays great stress upon the fact that this inborn possibility of life may be and almost always is shortened by incorrect habits.

He illustrated the subject of longevity by many homely examples A mule thirty years of age will sell for more than one but half as old, for the former has lived beyond the horse nature born in it and is no longer subject to the ailments peculiar to the horse; the latter, however, has yet to pass the period when it shall determine how far the horse nature is to affect him.

So a man on his mother's side may come from a short lived ancestry, while on the father's side he inherits a tendency to long life. If either one of these tendencies predominate in a marked degree, the man's life will be short or long accordingly, but if they are about equally blended a critical period will be when he passes the point at which his short lived ancestry have passed away. Once safely by this danger, however, he takes a new lease of life and drops forever the weakness he has inherited.

Tailors, jewelers, shoemakers and printers are short lived, not because those pursuits are necessarily unhealthy, but from the fact that only persons of a peculiar temperament select them. For the same reason black smiths are strong, not alone because they are blacksmiths, but they select that calling because they are strong.

Men with large lungs generally have large noses He never knew a small nosed man living to be eighty years of age, not that there is a fatality in small noses, but that they indicate and are the result of a weakness in the breathing power"

The lecture was voted to be a very entertaining one by the intelligent ladies and gentlemen present, and a second treatment of the subject will doubtless attract a large assemblage to the next lecture.

YOUNG MAN, YOU'RE WANTED.

A woman wants you; don't forget her. No matter if you are poor, don't wait to be rich, if you do, ten to one if you are fit to be married. Marry while you are young, and struggle up together. But mark, young man, the woman don't want you if she is to divide her affections with a cigar spittoon, or whisky jug, neither does she want you if you don't care for her and the little afterthoughts which are pretty sure to follow Neither does she want you simply because you are a man, the definition of which is too apt to be—an animal that wears bifurcated garments or his lower limbs, quarter of a section of stove pipe on his head, swears like a pirate, and gives to filthy practices generally. She wants you for a companion, for a helpmate—she wants you to have learned to regulate your appetites and passions; in fact the image of God, not in the likeness of a beast. If you are a thing in a good purpose, firm in resistance to evil, pure in thought and action as you require her to be, and without which inward purity neither of you are fit to be husband or wife; if you abhor vice; if you are gentlemanly, forbearing and kind, not loud talking, exacting and brutal—young man, the woman wants you, that modest, fair, cheerful, right-looking, frank spoken woman we mean, who fills your idea of maiden and wife. It is she that wants you—marry her when you like whether rich or poor; we trust you both on the above conditions, without any further security.

You resent the idea of your animal descent—that a beast has been exalted into you? How about your being degraded into a beast. There is no more proof that men are improved animals than that animals are deteriorated men. The brute was not your cradle you insist. Ah, yes; but is it going to be your tomb? It does not trouble me to think that I, my very soul lay in some memorable form as a crib, slept in a sloth or a tree, glided in a fish, burrowed with a rabbit flew in a bird. I will not despise the beginnings I have got so far above. But that I am degenerating and going down to the monkey, flounder, gudgeon or crab, that were the calamity. O winding politician, O cunning churchman, hypocrite in the house, trickster in the shop, dissembler of thy designs, feigner of love, with bows of greetings and smiles, disloyal companion, treacherous friend, if thou prevail with thy posterity to follow in thy path, thou, will at last become in them a snake or a fox which a keen eye sees thou art inwardly now! O human drunkard and fleshly gourmand, fearest thou not turning out a guzzling gorilla or gluttenous pig! O obstinate, unreasonable adversary, that will have the last word, you will be the vicious horse taking the bits into your iron mouth, as already we call you a mule. O, artful, soft stepping, cruel tempered woman, your own stealth and sharpness figure you now as a leopard or a catamount. Go the other way. Build up the beastly into the human, angelic God like nature.—Dr. Bartol.

TAKE YOUR HOME PAPER.

'Well, Squire, you say you don't take your home paper?'

'No, Major, I get the city papers on better terms and so I take a couple of them'

'But, Squire these country papers are a great convenience to us; the more we encourage them the better the editor can make them.'

'I don't know as they are of any convenience to me'

'The farm you sold last spring was advertised in one, and you thereby gained a customer.'

'Very true, Major, but I paid five dollars for it.'

'Now if the neighbors had not maintained that press, you would have been without means of publishing your daughter's marriage, and your brother's death last summer.'

'Yes, yes, but—

'And when your nephew was a candidate for the legislature, you were highly gratified at his newspaper defense, which elected him and cost a thing.'

'Yes, but these little things are news to the readers, and make the people take the papers'

'No, Squire, not if they are all like you, now. I tell you, squire, the day will come when somebody will write a long eulogy on your life, character, etc, and the printer will put it in type, with a heavy black rule over and under it, and with all your riches this will be done for you as the grave is for a pauper. Your wealth, liberality and all such will be spoken of; but the printer, as he spells the words in arranging the type will remark, 'Poor, mean devil; he never took the paper, and is now swindling the printer out of his funeral notice. Good morning.'

INDIAN IDOLS IN IOWA.

The Dubuque Times says that at the base of what is known as Capitola Bluff, seven miles from Lansing, there is an Indian idol manufactured out of the solid rock, which has stood there no one can tell for how long, but which must soon be removed to make room for the coming railroad. At a little distance the idol resembles a huge bear reposing upon its haunches. The strange and uncouth object is still held in the deepest veneration by Indians and the various bands, as they pass up and down the river invariably stop and propitiate the idol with liberal presents of tobacco, beads, buffalo tongues, etc There it sits at the base of the bluff mute and solemn, looking out with expressionless eyes over the bosom of the mighty river that murmurs at its feet, never speaking, like another sphynx. The ground where on the throne of the idol reposes is wanted for the road bed, and the silent expressionless god, whose brow has been bathed in the morning sunlight of so many centuries, must fall. But a short distance from this is a smaller idol, which was evidently been placed the side of the bluff, but by some convulsion of nature was overturned centuries ago and pitched into the river. During high water it is completely covered, but in low water the head and part of the body are distinctly visible.

The London press generally has noticed favorably a new project for laying another Atlantic telegraph cable. It appears from an extract from one of the journals that a company has been formed, entitled the Great Western telegraph Company, with a capital of six millions seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and that contracts have been made for this purpose. It is stated positively that a contract for making and laying the cables—one from England to the United States and another from the United States to the West Indies—was made on the 8th of this month with Hooper's Telegraph Works, and that the contractors have stipulated to take one third of the capital stock. So far, then this looks like business. Combinations are spoken of with other cable and telegraph companies; and especially with the Great Northern telegraph company, for a connection with Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Russia and with the Northern Asia. The intention is to bring the line direct from England to New York. We are promised a reduction of charges for messages to one half the present rate.

The pioneer Methodist, Peter Cartwright, uttered many odd and witty sayings He was often much annoyed at one sister, more noisy than pious, who would go off on a high key at every opportunity. At an animated class meeting the other day, she broke out with, 'If I had one more feather in the wing of my faith, I could fly away and be with my Savior.' 'Stick in the feather, Lord, and let her go,' fervently responded Bro. Cartwright.

A JAPANESE ROMANCE.

Once in Japan there was a poor, simple workman in the quarries. His life was rude, he worked much, gained little, and was not at all contented with his fate.

"Oh! If I could only be rich enough to rest, to sleep on thick matting wrapped in a kimmon of soft silk.' Such was the sigh he breathed to heaven. An angel intercepted it.

'It shalt be according to thy desire,' said the angel to him. And he at once became rich, and he rested, slept upon thick matting, and wrapped himself in a kimmon of soft silk.

It happened that the Emperor passed by. He was preceded by heralds on foot and horseback, followed by a brilliant escort of cavaliers, and surrounded by persons who held over his head on immense parasol resplendent with gold.

'What good does it do me to be rich,' murmured the man, 'as long as I have not the right to go out with an escort, and have my head protected with a golden parasol? Why am I not the Emperor?'

'Thou shalt be!' said the angel.

And, indeed, he became the emperor. He had an escort of cavaliers before and behind him, and people who held above his head an immense parasol resplendent with gold.

'It is a great advantage to be the emperor,' cried the man, 'when the heat of the day exhausts you, and the sun never ceases to make you feel his power! but if one could be the sun!'

'Behold! are you satisfied?' the angel asked. For he had become the sun, and he darted his beams up and down, right and left and all around him. And he scorched the herbage of the earth, and the faces of the princes upon the earth.

But a cloud thrust itself between the earth and him. It held back the rays of the sun, and prevented them from falling upon the earth's surface.

'There is strength,' cried the sun, a cloud capable of resisting my power. It would be better if I were a cloud.

'Very well,' said the angel.

And the transformation was at once accomplished. The new cloud placed itself between the sun and the earth, and so thoroughly intercepted the rays of the sun that it soon saw the earth covered with its shadow. Then it caused big drops of rain, and pouring showers and water spouts to fall on the land, so that the torrents burst their bounds and the rivers spread over and devastated the fields.

Nothing resisted the force of the inundation. Only a rock defied it; it was perfectly motionless. In vain the bellowing waters beat their fury, the rock yielded not, but the foaming waves died away at its foot.

'A rock is then my superior,' said the cloud; 'I would rather be in its place.'

'You shall be,' said the angel.

And he was transformed into a steep, unshaken rock, insensible to the rays of the sun, and indifferent to the tumultuous waves.

Nevertheless he distinguished at his feet a man of poor appearance, hardly clothed, but armed with a chisel and a hammer; and the man, with the help of these instruments, struck off pieces of rock, which he dressed into stones proper for cutting.

'What is that?' cried the rock, 'has a man the power to tender pieces of stone from my breast? Then it is absolutely necessary that I should be that man.'

'Have your will,' said the angel, and he became again what he had been—a poor stone cutter, a simple workman in the quarry. His life was rude, he worked much and gained little, but he was contented with his lot.

FOR WHOEVER IT FITS

There are nearly as many bad wives as bad husbands. Many men who work hard and try to do well in life, are neglected and abused by improvident women.

They are condemned to eat the poorest dinners, when they provide the best the market affords.

On heavy bread, soggy vegetables, muddy coffee and tough pie crust, how can a woman expect her husband to be loving?

Such men often drink whisky, because their food distresses them—as it would anybody who had not a cast iron stomach—and the habits of intemperance are sometimes in this way begun, through the fault of the wife.

It costs more to cook food poorly than to make food good and palatable.

If a woman runs home from a neighbor's just in time to throw a pie together, bake it, and bring it to the dinner table hot, she commits a great offence against the health of her family.

If a man has only an hour to go home, get his dinner and return to business, it should be ready for him promptly on time, else he will eat very hot food in the greatest haste, and start off for a rapid walk, all of which is very bad, and will soon show its effects upon the strongest man.

When her husband gets peevish, low spirited and forgetful of the little acts of kindness he taught her to expect in days agone, a woman who is such a housekeeper, need not sit in the twilight and wonder at sad changes.

Dyspepsia is not conducive to tender thoughts or happines.

Her she acted her part with half the zeal and industry of her husband, all would have been well, and she could sit in the sunshine of earlier days.

It is very hard for a man to caress the hand which has been feeding him slow poison.—Elm Orion.

A STRANGE STORY.

About five years ago a youth, apparently, fifteen or sixteen years of age, called at the publishing house of John E. Potter & Co., in Philadelphia, and offered a manuscript story for publication. Mr. Potter, the head of the firm, who happened to be in at the time, smiled at the idea of one so young aspiring to appear in literature as the author of a book, but finally, at the urgent request of the boy, consented to keep the manuscript a few days and look it over. When he had done so he was convinced that the story, while evincing a lack of polished education on the part of the boyish author, possessed considerable merit as an exciting novel, some of the scenes being described with wonderful power, and after consulting with the other members of the firm, decided to publish it. When the youth called a few days afterwards he told him of his conclusion, and it was agreed that the author should receive a royalty of ten cents a copy on all sold. The story was duly published in book form under the title of White Rocks, and since that time one hundred and seventy thousand copies have been sold. But what is singular about it is that the youthful author has never been seen or heard of since, and there is now due him on the copyright the sum of $17,000 as royalty on his story.

OHIO SONS OF TEMPERANCE.

At the meeting of the Grand Division of Ohio Sons of Temperance in Springfield, Thursday, reports were presenteed showing the order to be in a very prosperous condition throughout the state. Since the last meeting of the Grand Division sixty five new subordinate divisions have been organized with an average membership of eighty six members each. Strong resolutions were presented and adopted protesting against any change whatever in the in the existing State liquor law. Temperance men every where were enjoined to make the temperance question uppermost in politics; subordinate divisions were instructed to resolve themselves into committees for the prosecution of cases of violation of liquor laws that may come under their notice. The convention adjourned at noon, having adopted a resolution of thanks to the Springfield Division and citizens of Springfield for their hospitality. The annual meeting of the Grand Division takes place October 22, 1872, at Perryville, Ashland county.

'What an ungrateful return!' said a defeated candidate, when a count of his votes proved him to be in the minority.

Genius unexalted is no more genius than a bushel of acorns is a forest of oaks.

Moderation is the silken string running through the pearl chain of all the virtues.

Men of genius are often dull and inert in society; as the blazing meteor, when it descends to the earth, is only a stone.

What is the difference between perseverance and obstinacy? The one is a strong will, the other is a strong won't.

'What are you doing there?' said a grocer to a fellow who was stealing lard, 'I am getting fat,' was the reply.

Kindness is the music of good will to men, and on this harp the smallest fingers may play heaven's sweetest tune on earth.

A colored preacher, in discoursing to his people on the efficacy of earnest prayer, delivered himself in this manner: "I tell you, bredern, its prayer that gibs de debil de locked jaw."

A subscriber to an Iowa paper having written to say: 'I don't want your paper any longer,' the editor replies: 'We are sorry, as we intended to lengthen it by several inches in a few weeks,'

Do not talk about yourself or family, to the exclusion of other topics. What, if you are clever, and a little more so than other people, it may not be that other folks will think so, whatever they ought to do.

Independent of worthy considerations, mental pursuits invariably bestow a rich reward on their votary, in the delight attendant or their cultivation, and the temporary oblivion at least of all anxious cares, in the abstraction they require.

At a social gathering, where humorous definitions was one of the games of the evening, the question was put, 'What is religion?' 'Religion,' replied one of the party, more famous as a man of business than a man of wit, 'is an insurance against fire in the next world, for which honesty is the best policy.'

A little six year old boy was asked by his teacher to write a composition on the subject of water, and the following is the production: 'Water is good to drink, to swim in, and to skate on when frozen. When I was a baby the nurse used to bathe me every morning in water. I have heard that Injuns don't wash themselves once in two years. I wish I was an Injun.'

Massillon, Wednesday, May 8.

The convention of liberal republicans, so called—those who oppose Presicent Grant's re-election—which convened at Cincinnati on the 1st inst, was attended by a large number of people; all, or nearly all, the states were represented. The first days doings consisted in making preliminaries to a permaneat organization, appointing committees, and such other matters as seemed to need attention. On the second day Hon. Carl Schurz, a Republican senator from Missouri, was made permanent chairman, and the complement of vice presidents and secretaries were named. The committee on platform reported a very good republican document, not hard to ascend; but the great tariff question was not pronounced upon definitely. Weeks ago Mr Greeley of the Tribune, suggested that that matter be left to the people to decide. And that is about the position which this new platform takes on this question. This platform, however, was not adopted without some discussion, but a united aye responded to its final approval.

But the matter which elicited the most attention, and which was the subject of most thought and debate among the members, were the nominations. The first balloting resulted as follows: Adams, 203 David Davis, 92½; Gratz Brown, 93, Chase, 2½; Trumbull, 110; Greeley, 100; Curtin, 62 As there were 714 votes cast, it was necessary that some one should have at leas, 358 votes to secure the prize—of course nobody was nominated on first ballot. Curtin was withdrawn, and the second ballot stood Greeley, 233; Adams, 243; Trumbull, 148; Brown, 2; Chase, 1. About this time the states began to change their votes, and when the 6th balloting was completed it was declared that Greeley was the nominee. Saturday's papers don't give the details of the last vote, but assert that state after state wheeled in for Mr. Greeley, which put him away ahead. Nor do they give the particulars as to the ballotings for vice president, but announce the result by saying that Gratz Brown, a thorough old fashioned abolitionist of Missouri was selected for vice president.

The platform embraces many excellent ideas. We have said it is a good republican document, having thirteen items. In addition, as we understand it, to what the republicans have heretofore professed as their political faith, that they favor civil service reform,—a speedy return to specie payment—opposed to granting public lands to railroad companies—for holding one presidential term, and universal amnesty. No good republican will find fault with these sentiments, and it is highly probable that the Philadelphia convention will adopt all these ideas and possibly go a little in advance, especially on the tariff question.

In a large national convention, such as that was, made up of men from all parts of the union, no doubt there were not a few scheming, selfish wire pullers, who worked for interest more than principle, but we are convinced that there were many earnest, honest, sincere, retormatory men there, who are laboring for the best interests, as they conceive, of the country. Whether the wily politicians outwitted them or not in making the nominations they did, and pursuing the course they adopted, is a question to be solved in the future.

The present administration may have committed errors—it would be more than human were it otherwise—but to us it looks as though the president is honest and sincere, and in administering the government for some forty millions of people has committed as few errors as any other man would have done in his place. Whether a change will better the condition of things or not is for the future to tell, provided a change of rulers is effected.

A disposition is manifest in many of the republican papers to represent this Cincinnati movement as a small affair—as a failure, and as a matter unworthy of serious notice. This is a mistake we think—not that we anticipate the overthrow of the present administration by this new movement—for the zealous, high toned and intellectual workers in this reform will succeed in 1876 if they don t in 1872. The great ideas they promulgate are constantly finding more favor with the American people.

Many seem to entertain the idea that the democrats will co-operate with this reformatory movement. If they do the new party may succeed, but it will annihilate the democratic party. For if Grant or Greeley is elected it is a republican victory, and from present aprearances there is nobody who can succeed against them. Many of the leaders of that waning party are for independent action, as we see by their papers, and they may keep up their organization by making nominations. Their national committee is to meet soon to see about this business.

To us it looks as if Gen. Grant will be re-elected. He has a good many friends all over the country—many thousands of whom are neither office holders nor do they expect to be. The colored vote in the country is a large item, and Gen Grant may count on that with great certainty. So if the democrats hunt up another Seymour and another Blair their chance is hopeless, for Grant is a republican, and from the democratic standpoint Greeley is a republican of the blackest sort.

Among the gentlemen in attendance at the Cincinnati convention we notice the names of Jacob Heaton, Twing Brooks and others of Columbiana county. It is said that Stark county was represented there by our fellow citizen, F. L. Baldwin, Esq. Mrs Gordon, of California and Susan B Anthony of New York, were present. The former lady said she sympathized with the movement, and tried to make a speech, but was ruled out of order and hooted down by the crowd. These reformers will have to advance a few few more steps.

Those new bales and boxes lately in front of P & H. Diethenn's clothing store indicate the arrival of a large stock of goods, which are going off rapidly.

GRAND CONCERT at City Hall, Pittsburgh, Pa., July 4th, 1872.—We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement in this week's paper of the concert at City Hall Pittsburgh, July 4th. At the conclusion of the concert 300 beautful building lots at Oakdale Station, on the Pittsburgh, St Louis and Cincinnati R R, will be distributed among the ticket holders. The price of the ticket has been fixed at the low price of One Dollar each, and will entitle the holder to a chance of drawing one of the Lots.

To those desiring to get up clubs, the premiums are very liberal. Address all communications to Geo. H. Shanafelt, 72 Third Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

In accordance with the announcement last week bro. J. A Davidson attended a temperance meeting in Good Templars' Hall last Thursday evening, where he address d those present in a searching and earnest manner on the temperance question. He is a faithful and efficient laboror in the work, and by his impressive and high toned course is sure to win the sympathies of all who hear him. His efforts are well worthy the attention of the friends of temperance.

T. H. Seaman, our worthy marshal, in the last number of the American, presents a number of important facts, all of which tell decidedly in favor of the 9 o'clock ordinance. No man in the city is better qualified to judge of its efficiency than the marshal.

The youth, Jacob Plants, who was stabbed by Dr. Gardener, at Brookfield, died on Monday. He is represented as a quiet, sober inoffensive person, and was not even speaking to Gardner when the assault took place. The knife penetrated one of his lungs, and from this cause in all probability the wound proved fatal. This is another whisky murder. Gardner is now in jail.

DECORATION DAY.

HEADQUARTERS DAPARTMENT OF OHIO,
Grand Army of the Republic, U. S.
Adj't Genl's Office, Cleveland, Ohio.
April 22d, 1872.
General Orders, No. 5.

I. In conformity with the regulations establishing the 30th of May as a day to be observed by the Grand Army of the Republic in paying tribute to our deceased and fallen comrades in arms, the several posts in this department are expected and required to take such appropriate measures for the observance of that day as will best conform to their location, and the spirit of the regulations referred to.

II. This is the fifth ob ervance of the day which has become national for this sacred occasion. Many are now missing from our ranks that were with us before. Time with busy fingers counts the hours for all. In the midst of life we are in death, and one by one our comrades are mustered out to join the Grand Encampment on high. Let us come, then, to the last resting place of our heroic dead, with hearts overflowing with gratitude at our preservation, and hands full of the fresh and beautiful offerings of youthful spring, on this holy day, to strew with garlands and flowers the graves of our fathers, sons and brothers, whose brave spirits went out in the dark days of our nation's peril in defending the honor, integrity and liberties of this our beloved country.

III. And as we strew the fragrant emblems of purity that come with votive memories of love and prayer over the mounds that mark the country's altar, and fold in eternal rest those who fell in battle, let us pay double tribute to the veterans who now sleep free from pain and lingering disease, that on previous occasions participated with us in bestowing memorials of love and affection to departed worth.

IV. It is very desirable that records of memorial services be preserved, and the Post Commanders are requested to forward to this office a report of such proceedings as may take place in their respective commands. By order of

WM C BUNTS,
Department Commander.

Resolutions of Clinton Lodge, No 47 F & A M, on the Death of Bro. Abraham Harsh.

WHEREAS, Death has again invaded our fraternal circle, and removed from us a worthy and beloved brother; by this dispensation of an all wise Providence, all are reminded of the uncertainty of life, the certainty of death, and the vanity of human wishes. Bro A. Harsh departed this life on Wednesday evening, April 10, 1872, almost without warning, leaving a void in our circle, not soon to be filled. Therefore,

Resolved, That in the death of our Brother we are reminded of the instability of all human affairs, and are admonished to be ready when the Great Master shall call us from labor.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to his bereaved family, and trust that He who is the orphan's father and the widow's friend, will be their support in this their hour of afflictions.

Resolved, That Clinton Lodge, No 47, F & A M, be draped in morning for 30 days. and that as a mark of respect for our deceased brother, we will wear the usual badge of mourning for the same period.

Resolved, that a copy of the foregoing resolution by the worshipful master of the Lodge and the same be sent to the family of the deceased and also that they be published in the Massillon city papers.

How we used to be Physicked.

Who does not remember the time when spring purgation was considered indispensable to summer health? No matter for wry faces, the inevitable salts and senna, rhubarb, calomel and jalap, must be administered. These "Spring medicines," the youngsters were told, were to keep them hale and hearty during the summer. We know now this a fallacy; that new vigor not depletion, is what is required at the commencement of the summer solstice. As a preparation for the enervating effects of oppressive summer weather, a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly expedient. This famous vegetable preparation has three prominent properties: It renovates purifies and regulates all the functions of the body. It is composed exclusively of pure vegetable productions, viz: the essential principle of Monongahela Rye, and the most efficacious tonic and alterative roots, barks, and gums known to medical botanists. Hence, it is an absolutely safe medicine, and no tincture of the Pharmacopœia can compare with it either in purity, or in the variety of its objects, and its comprehensive results Happily for mankind, the theory that it was necessary to prostrate a patient in order to cure him, is forever exploded, and the true philosophical doctrine, that vigor is the great antagonist of disease, has taken its place. Hostetter's Bitters is an invigorant, and hence it is the proper medicine for the feeble at this most trying season of the year.

Be sure that you obtain the genuine article, as there are innumerable vile imitations in the market. Look to the ornamented stamp, the engraved label, and the name blown in the glass. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is sold in bottles only.

Jesse Duck, Esq, of Salem, the revenue collector of this district, will visit Massillon on the 13th inst, on business connected with his office. Is n't it about time this sort of thing was played out?

Barnum, who knows well the magic of printers' ink when judiciously applied to paper, the other day had our city well supplied with a pretty full description of his coming show, which is to visit this place on the 19th of June. That he will create a sensation when he comes there will be no doubt, for as a showman his fame is deservedly world wide.

Before many weeks elapse it is somewhat certain that Massillon will be visited by the Pittsburg Oratorio Troupe, prominent among whom is Miss Ellen Knapp, aided by some twenty ladies and gentlemen, who propose to present, musically, Esther, the Beautiful Queen, and other celebrated compositions. This company is represented as being composed of a highly cultivated membership, who deserve the patronage of the public.

On last Thursday a very large convention of miners was held at Manchester, Summit County. On that occasion it was decided that they hold out for one dollar a ton. At this writing we have not ascertained whether the employers will agree to this proposition or not.

Since writing the above, we learn that the demands of the miners have been agreed to, and they have resumed operations.

One day last week it was currently reported that the railroad laborers, who have been receiving $1,75 a day, struck for $2. The consequence was they were out of employ for a while, but on Monday morning they resumed work at the old figures.

The liberal advertising and fine display of show bills by the coming grand exhibition on the 13th inst in this place, will very certainly attract general attention, and of course a large attendance, to witness the wonders which will there be presented to the gaze of the thousands of spectators who will congregate to see this admirable collection. Those Arabs, who are of the circus performers, are described by those who have seen them as marvels of skill and dexterity in the difficult achievements which are now expected of this class of experts,

Within the last two years a rather suspicious character calling himself Wright settled in Jackson township, and by his ingenuity ingratiated himself in the affections of a young lady of a respectable family, whom he married some months ago. It has just come to light that this Wright is one of a gang of robbers, and detectives have found large quantities of goods where he lived, which goods have been identified by their owners. Wright is now in jail in Portage county.

It is stated that there are received and kept on file at the American Newspaper Advertising Agency of Geo. P. Powell & Co., New York, no less than 582 different American Daily Newspapers, 56 tri-weeklies, 49 semi-weeklies, 4,662 weeklies 8 semi-monthlies and 320 monthlies, making a weekly average of over 8,500 periodicals of all kinds which are regularly filed and kept open for inspection by advertisers and others who may be interested. The visitor to New York from Oregon, Texas, Florida or Maine, can find at this establishment the local paper published at his home.

SAD ACCIDENT.—On Monday last Mr. Andrew Whistler, of the firm of Reynolds, Sissler & Co., manufacturers of the well known Manchester scythe stone, at their manufactory about three miles up the rail-road, had his right leg caught in the belt of their machinery, and the result was, it was terribly crushed and mangled. Dr Ridenour, of this place, was called on, who immediately hastened to the relief of the wounded man. On examining the case it was found necessary, in order to save the man from bleeding to death to resort to amputation, but before proceeding to perform the operation Dr. R. called in Dr. A. Metz to aid in examining the case, and he promptly came to the conclusion that surgery was absolutely necessary. Dr. Ridenour then proceeded to perform the operation, Dr. M. rendering the necessary aid. It is a sad affair for Mr. S. who is just in the prime of an active and useful life, and who, with his partners, are carrying on an extensive business in the manufacture of whet-stones and grindstones. We hope he may survive this calamity, and be permitted to enjoy his wonted health.

Henry Willenborg, once an active, intelligent business man of this place. but of late years in adverse circumstances, recently went to Illinois where he died. His body was brought here a few days ago and interred in one of the cemeteries.

The very large and varied assortment of goods in the clothing line which can be seen at S. Koch & C's Opera House clothing hall comprehends every variety and style desirable for gentlemen's outfit. The well filled shelves, drawers and other receptacles for placing coats, pants, vests and everything else in this branch of trade, are daily being diminished of their contents, so that the big lot which was recently on hand will soon disappear to be replaced by a new cargo. The obliging gentlemen who manage the establishment are always ready to see their friends and customers, and treat them so well that they will come back again.

In the article published last week, signed Wm Pinn, a very awkward blunder occurs —an out, which makes the reading mean directly the contrary of what the writer designed. In the 24th line from the top of the column the words, "what will that compare with the ten thousand millions," should come after the words dollars' worth, and before the words, of the nation's credit, which fill the line.

Ordinarily but little interest is evinced in the proceedings of our city council, but on last Wednesday evening it was anticipated that action would be taken in regard to the repeal of the nine o'clock ordinance, so quite a number of spectators were present to witness the course of members thereon. After the usual routine of business of a preliminary character was disposed of reports for standing committee were the order of the evening, when Mr. Folger, chairman of the judicary, on whom devolved the duty of drafting the repealing ordinance, read the report which was very brief and to the point A motion was made to refer it to the judiciary committee, which was regarded as indirectly, if not directly a test question, which resulted in the motion being voted down. We don't understand that all the gentlemen who voted with the majority favor the unqualified repeal of the law—report says part of them desire it modified, while others seek its entire repeal. Following a little skirmishing this question was quiet for a short time, during which other business was disposed of, but renewed attention was directed again to it when Messrs Crone and Kirkland announced that they had the names of something over four hundred remobstrants, among whom are many of the leading and best citizens of the place. We are pleased to say that on this list the clergy are well represented, Catholics and Protestants uniting in this respect, while all denominations, political parties and social grades were in harmony with them. A more thorough canvas would have secured five or six times as many names to these protests; had time been extended for their circulation, but as it is the demonstration was a very creditable one. We should like exceedingly to see the names of our citizens on the other side.

The presentation of these remonstrances reopened the question, then the dullness of council proceedings was disposed of, and members seemed wide awake to what was up. Motions were made to indefinibly postpone action—to lay the remonstrances on the table, or to pay no attention to them. On these and other incidental motions several votes were taken and almost every time parties stood four to four which rules the propositions lost. It appears to certain of the members, and to the outsiders that some of these motions—the yeas and nays of of which are required to be recorded—contemplated the denial of the right of petition, or at least paying no respect to the remonstrances. but no majority could be had to sustain such moves. It was rather more than the proposers of this repeal bargained for to confront and overrule the wishes of such a number of their fellow citizens as were arrayed against them. All these proceedings, of course, were required to be governed by the rules of order, which universally mark the deliberations of legislative bodies. On parliamentary or congressional order Mr. Folger is quite well posted, and imparted such information to some of the member as gave them entirely new ideas. Here the right of petition was involved, and although no member would acknowledge that he desired to deny that principle a hearing, yet as some of them were quite zealous for the repeal of the law they found themselves in a dilemma which they had not anticipated. Mr Folger, on that occasion, challenged the universal respect of of every friend of order in the city by the steadfastness, ability and persistence of his course in behalf of the right, and notwithstanding he was over and over again personally taunted with being a disturber of the council, trying to baffle the will of the seeming majority, he showed clearly, on every point, that he pleaded for the right, and was sustained therein by such authorities as Jefferson's and Cushing's Manuals on rules governing deliberative bodies We doubt not but that those gentlemen who opposed are honest and sincere in their convictions, but they seemed not to be posted as to how to carry the great point aimed at. The subject is so suggestive and a great many other points in this connection might be noted that much more could be stated in regard to the doings of the council on this point, but our people are quite well posted as to what is going on in regard to it, so that it dont seem necessary to make further reference thereto at this time

Before council adjourned, however, the conclusion was arrived at that further action will be taken on this question this evening—whether final or not is not now known. The votes heretofore as a general thing, were incidental rather than direct, but when the main question comes up—repeal or no repeal—then will be the time to test the feelings of members. Before final action, in common with many of our citizens, we hope the repealers will give the reason for the faith that is in them. Those who oppose the repeal are neither afraid nor ashamed to freely express their sentiments the question involved. Let it be distinctly remembered that this nine o'clock ordinance, which seems to disturb the grogsellers and their friends, was enacted directly in consequence of a liquor murder—there is no rubbing that out— our whole community knows it, and especially do the citizens of Kendall, who strongly petitioned for the ordinance as a means of self protection from the hands of violence. So let every good citizen who can, be there to night. Indeed, it has been suggested that it would be a good idea to have that bereaved widow, whose husband was killed last winter, them others of the unfortunate young men whom liquor inspired to perpetrate that fatal act of violence, and other suffering women in the council chamber, to witness the doings of our city fathers on a question that to them is one of life or death. They should see for themselves who favor and who oppose the mahainery which manifests itself in wickedness and blood.

Preparations are making to observe decoration day, which comes on Thursday, May 30th. Our G A R. post are already taking the necessary steps to attend to this beautiful ceremonial, and in the performance thereof will be favored with an address by chaplain Collier, a gentleman with a national reputation in attending to matters of this character. Some five of the remains of deceased soldiers of this place, we are informed, will be placed within the burial lot, in Massillon Cemetery, so that in visiting their resting places it will not be necessary for those who have a prominent part to perform on that occasion will not be required to travel over the cemetery grounds, as has been done heretofore.

Our soap manufacturers, Messrs Lang & Dickey, are much more perplexed to fill their orders than to find market for their productions. This is proof that their soaps are of the best quality, and that the public are fully appreciative thereof. A good name in business is worth a great many dollars.

Myers & Willison are having active sales for their manufacture of wagons, which are much sought after. Orders are often coming in, and very promptly filled. Those iron hubs—'draw the attraction' then the general and substantial finish of their work commands itself to the attention of all.

THE NEW FAMILY
SINGER SEWING MACHINE

The undersigned has opened rooms for the sale of this celebrated Sewing Machine, three doors north from McLain, Dangler & Co's store, Erie street, Massillon, O., where he intends to keep on hand a full assortment of Sewing Machines, needles, attachments, and findings for all machines. Silks and threads of best quality.

This NEW FAMILY MACHINE is capable of a range and variety of work such as was thought impossible to perform by machinery. We claim and can show that it is the cheapest, most beautiful, delicately arranged, nicely adjusted, easily operated, and smoothly running of all family sewing machines. It is remarkable not only for the range and variety of its sewing, but also for the variety and different kinds of texture which it will sew with equal facility and perfection, using silk twist, linen or cotton thread, fine or coarse, making the interlocked-elastic-stitch, alike on both sides of the fabric sewn. Thus, beaver cloth, or leather, may be sewn with great strength and uniformity of stich; and, in a moment, this willing and never wearying instrument may be adjusted for fine work on gauze or gossamer tissue, or the tucking of tarlatan, or ruffling, or almost any other work which delicate fingers have been known to perform.

Purchasers wishing to buy a machine are requsted to call and examine our prices &c., before purchasing elsewhere.

MANHOOD:

How Lost How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical cure (without medicine) of spermatorrhœa, or seminal weakness, involuntary seminal losses, impotency, physical and mental incapicity, impediments to marriage, etc: also consumption, epilepsy and fits, induced by self indulgence or sexual extravagance.

Price in a sealed envelope, 6 cents.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife: pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent, under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid, on receipt of six cents or two post stamps.
